

Save-The-Date:

Seven Sisters Wikipedia Edit-a-Thons

Tuesday March 4 (Smith College, Barnard College, Mount Holyoke College); Wednesday March 12 (Radcliffe College); and Tuesday March 25 (Bryn Mawr College)

#7sisterswiki #wikiwomen #glamwiki

Seven Sisters students, faculty, staff, and community are invited to participate or host an event for the coordinated Wikipedia Edit-a-Thons going on this March currently scheduled at Barnard College, Smith College, Mount Holyoke College, and Radcliffe College.

digitized images.

In the past few years, Wikipedia's efficacy has been a continual cause for debate in academic communities and libraries. That said, educational institutions cannot avoid addressing the huge resource that Wikipedia provides to research and college communities, who use it from everything to getting a brief introduction on a subject to beginning the search for primary resources and Editing Wikipedia is an opportunity for students and community alike to learn more about how Wikipedia can be used as a research tool, and get an inside look at its policies and process. The Edit-a-Thons will also be an opportunity to share ideas, knowledge, and resources, and contribute to the global knowledge on Women's History and the strong place in History of 7Sisters alumnae and community.

For details about the individual events, see the 7Sisters Edit-a-Thon Page on Wikipedia:

<https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Wikipedia:Meetup/SevenSisters/March2014SevenSisters>

We are also looking for hosts at Vassar and Wellesley Colleges so if you know of any students/faculty/librarians or staff that might be interested in those locations, please let us know.