

Words have the power to heal. But only if you can read them.

Millions around the world are using the Internet to find high quality health information. But for many local communities, this valuable knowledge is locked away in languages they cannot understand.

You can help your community learn to speak the language of health! Translate health information into your local language with Health Speaks.

Health Speaks is an initiative to overcome language barriers to health by increasing the amount of online health information in local languages. Currently, the translation of health information is expensive and time-consuming. But it doesn't have to be this way! Join Health Speaks, and become part of an incredible community of participants who are contributing their time and expertise towards translating health articles using Google Translator Toolkit.

If you are bilingual in English and Arabic and educated in health topics, you can easily help your community.

Participate now and help a local health organization raise up to US $50,000!

For each word you translate, we'll donate US 3 cents to the organization.

Find out more at www.google.org/healthspeaks or your local Health Speaks event.

