

Take part in the world's largest photography event

23rd August - 30th September

Certified by Guinness World Records for two consecutive years as the world's largest photography contest, Ireland has never taken part in Wiki Loves Monuments until now.

Wiki Loves Monuments Ireland is a nationwide photo contest for both amateur and professional photographers. Simply find your nearest eligible national monument, take your best shot, and upload to Wikipedia anytime between 23rd August and 30th September.

Throughout Heritage Week there'll be dedicated photowalks happening around Ireland where you can join groups of enthusiastic photographers in the quest to take the best picture. Find your nearest photowalk on www.heritageweek.ie, set up your own photowalk group, or just head out yourself! For more details on how to enter the contest, photowalks, prizes and the official launch event, visit:
